

Clinical training

for professionals, carers and organisations

Delivered by experienced clinicians to build confidence, improve safety,
and support high-quality care

Training grounded in real clinical practice

PSP training is designed and delivered by clinicians who work daily across a range of healthcare settings.

We provide practical, hands-on training that supports professionals, carers, and families to deliver safe, confident, and consistent care.

We work across healthcare, education, workplace and home environments, supporting anyone responsible for delivering or overseeing care.

This isn't theory-led training, it's built around what actually happens in practice.

Why teams

choose PSP

Clinically led training

and organisations

Competency assessment and sign-off

Training alone doesn't always provide reassurance that staff feel confident and competent delivering complex care.

PSP can provide competency assessment and sign-off to support safer care delivery across home, education, workplace and care environments.

Our clinicians assess practical competency in real-world settings, helping teams demonstrate:

- Safe clinical practice
- Understanding of procedures and protocols
- Confidence managing complex needs
- Consistency across care teams
- Reduced clinical risk

This is particularly valuable for complex care packages, case management teams, schools, and organisations supporting clients with specialist clinical needs.

Common areas we support competency sign-off in:

- Respiratory management
- Bowel care
- Tracheostomy care
- Deep suctioning

Our training programmes

We offer a wide range of clinically-led training courses, which can be delivered individually or as part of a tailored programme.

Our core training courses are CPD accredited, providing evidence-based learning and recognised certification.

Bespoke training programmes can also be developed to meet specific needs (non-CPD accredited).

Don't see exactly what you need? We can design bespoke training tailored to your team, setting, or client.

When do teams come to PSP?

- When care feels inconsistent
- When staff lack confidence
- When managing complex needs at home
- When risk needs to be reduced
- When competency sign off is needed

Manual handling in practice

Our manual handling training is bespoke and patient-centred, designed around the individual and their environment.

We carry out on-site manual handling risk assessments to ensure techniques are safe, practical, and tailored to real-world care delivery.

This training is widely delivered across schools, workplaces, and care settings, supporting teams to reduce risk and deliver consistent, safe care.
